CONTRIBUTORS

Tanya Chebotarev received her MA in linguistics from Moscow State University and her MLS from Simmons College. She is the curator of the Bakhmeteff Archive of Russian and East European History and Culture at Columbia University. She is a coeditor of Russian and East European Books and Manuscripts in the United States, the proceedings of a conference in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the Bakhmeteff Archive. She is presently preparing the first volume of a multivolume set of Russian émigré memoirs from the Bakhmeteff Archive to be published by ROSSPEN in Moscow.

Ferenc Földesi is a manuscript specialist in the National Széchenyi Library in Budapest, Hungary. He has been closely involved with the digitization project of the Bibliotheca Corviniana, and has published extensively on the project and on medieval manuscripts.

W. Gerald Heverly is librarian for classics, Hellenic studies, and philosophy at New York University. Previously, he was employed by the University of Pittsburgh Libraries. He holds a BA and an MA in philosophy, an MA in classics, and an MLS. He is active in the American Library Association, the American Philological Association, and the Classical Association of the Atlantic States. He is interested in collaborative projects that promote access to manuscripts, especially from antiquity and the Middle Ages.

Mike Kelly is the curator of books at the Fales Library & Special Collections at New York University. He was the Preconference Program Planning Committee chair for the 2004 RBMS Preconference. He recently repatriated a complete run of Punk magazine from a dealer in London to the Fales Library in New York City.
Ronald D. Patkus is associate director of the Library for Special Collections at Vassar College, where he has worked since 2000. He also chairs the Digitization Advisory Committee of the Southeastern New York Library Resources Council. Previously, he served as head of archives and manuscripts at Boston College. Patkus holds a PhD in history from Boston College, an MS in library science from Simmons College, and an MA in history and a Certificate in Archival Management from the University of Connecticut.

Anne Rothfeld is a historian and librarian in the History of Medicine Division of the National Library of Medicine. Her research interests include cultural property plundered by the Nazis and their collaborators during World War II, and espionage in early twentieth century.