CONTRIBUTORS

E.J. Carter is Assistant Professor and Special Collections Librarian at Chicago State University, where he curates rare books and oversees digital and oral history projects. He has an MLIS and Ph.D. from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. His current research focuses on the concept of “trash” and its role in the evolution of manuscript repositories.

Melissa A. Hubbard is Rare Book Librarian and Assistant Professor at Southern Illinois University Carbondale, where she is responsible for collection development and management, reference services, and outreach and teaching activities. She has a BA in English and an MS in Library Science from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, as well as an MA in English from University College London.

Ann K.D. Myers is Assistant Professor and Special Collections Cataloger at Southern Illinois University Carbondale, where she is responsible for cataloging rare books, manuscripts, and archival collections, as well as other descriptive services. She has an MLS and an MA in History from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Joseph R. Nicholson is an Assistant Librarian at LSU Libraries at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, where he is responsible for cataloging serials and special collections materials. He holds a BA in Comparative Literature and Classics and an MLS from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and an MA in English Literature from the College of William and Mary. Prior to becoming a librarian, he worked as a teacher, as a library assistant, and as an assistant editor for Private Libraries in Renaissance England: A Collection and Catalogue of Tudor and Early Stuart Book-Lists.